Amy Unell, Assistant Director, Duke in Silicon Valley Program

Amy Unell serves as a catalyst and liaison to create, connect and collaborate in arts entrepreneurship across the University. In addition to her role with the Duke Innovation and Entrepreneurship Initiative, Amy works with the Office of the Vice Provost for the Arts to curate and promote initiatives in all facets of arts education at Duke.

A graduate of Duke University, Amy is an Alumna in Residence at the Duke Career Center and teaches seminar courses at Duke focused on entrepreneurship and multimedia storytelling. She is also the assistant director of the Duke in Silicon Valley Program.

A proud Midwesterner at heart, Amy was born and raised in Kansas City and is an avid Cameron Crazy.